PATRICIAN

Presented by the Seniors

ST. PATRICK HIGH SCHOOL

Brockton, Massachusetts

OUR TWO-FOLD HERITAGE

During our school life at St. Patrick, we have been taught to appreciate our two-fold heritage of faith and freedom.

Mary is a living symbol of our Faith. Our love for her has increased with each year of our spiritual, mental and physical development. We have learned to pray to her in all our needs, confiding to her the inner secrets of our youth and have felt on all occasions the security of her power.

As Mary is the guardian of our faith so she is the protectress of our freedom. The Church attests her confidence in Mary by placing America under her protection, knowing that she will safeguard our freedom from false ideals and foreign foes as long as we remain true to the faith of her Divine Son.

As we emerge from the struggles of our four years of learning, we know we are secure for we possess the double heritage of faith and freedom — adequate weapons to meet the challenges that await us on the morrow. We leave with a faith that we know cannot fail and a freedom that cannot die as long as Mary protects them within the folds of her mantle.

In appreciation for her protection, we wish to dedicate the 1959 issue of the Patrician to her. May she ever guide, guard and direct us as we leave the portals of our beloved high school and enter upon a new way of life.

"Long may it wave!" Assisting at the flag-raising ceremony are Joan Antone, Judith Stevens, Barbara Little, and Phyllis Saulnier.

Monsignor has dedicated himself wholeheartedly to our religious training and character formation. His guiding spirit has led us to spiritual and intellectual riches; his paternal charity has enlightened our undertakings, reassuring and strengthening us in our striving for good.

We are deeply grateful to Monsignor, Father Riley, Father Langley and Father Murphy and wish to express our appreciation for their pastoral care of us.

The Sisters of Charity of Nazareth have for seventy-five years been a familiar figure in the educational circle of the Archdiocese of Boston. Today, they staff nine elementary and five high schools in Boston and its environs with a total enrollment of 6,221 children.

Founded in 1812 amidst the privations of the early life of our nation, they have for a century and a half retained a pioneer spirit which enables them to face the problems of each succeeding day.

We will try to show our appreciation for all their efforts in our behalf by keeping the lamp of faith and the shield of freedom safe for those who will follow in our footsteps.

share their talents

MISS MARY BULMAN

Miss Bulman, our school nurse, received her training at Boston City Hospital. Her post-graduate work was done at Simmons College and Boston University. Miss Bulman held the post of supervisor of visiting nurses in Brockton for thirty years before becoming a school nurse. Miss Bulman is a welcome and well-loved personage at S.P.H.

MRS. RODENBUSH

Mrs. Rodenbush, a graduate of Brockton High School, received her early training in music from our own Sisters. She also studied music at the Shillinger House, now the Berkeley School of Music in Boston. Mrs. Rodenbush has taught piano and organ at St. Patrick's for a total of six years. She loves to cook and knit; this shows she is a busy homemaker as well as a talented musician.

MRS. MARY RING FAGAN

"Miss Ring" is a graduate of Mary Frances Rooney School of Speech and Boston College Drama School. She teaches speech in grades one through twelve and directs the annual operetta. Six years ago, she married Mr. Arnold F. Fagan; but she will always be known to us as "Miss Ring." We appreciate the warmth and spirit she brings with her each week.

MRS. LOVERING

Sergeant's claims Mrs. Lovering as a 1945 graduate. For the past five years, she has given generously her time and effort to the coaching of sports and the teaching of gymnastics to the students of St. Patrick's. Although her taste in sports varies, she pinpoints her favorite sport to basketball.

Retreat

Let all who take refuge in thee, rejoice, let them be glad forever.

Each year the seniors are offered the opportunity to steep their souls in grace before leaving their Alma Mater. On this day the graduates put aside their studies and extracurricular activities and concentrate on the "one thing necessary" under the direction of Monsignor Gill.

The Curriculum

Religion is the core of the curriculum at St. Patrick's. It is integrated in each phase of learning; it pervades the atmosphere of the entire school day.

In order that the knowledge of God be complete and vital, however, students must follow the tracery of His finger on His universe, past and present, and must have the knowledge; the secular knowledge; necessary effectively to pattern their lives so that they will further and deepen His reign over society. Each student must reach the maximum intellectual attainment possible; he must have the skills of the learning processes under perfect command; he must know how to think and to express his thought clearly and forcibly; he must know the basic principles that regulate the physical world and his social and economic environment; he must be not only a zealous, militant Catholic; he must be an informed, thoughtful and socially effective member of the Mystical Body.

Courses in the arts are offered with the hope that the beauty and power inherent in them may enrich the lives of the pupils and may disclose to them some reflection of God, who is Infinite Beauty.

Since the study of the arts challenges all the mental faculties, they are essential in the general development of a well-integrated personality.

The greatest career for a woman outside the religious life is that of a Catholic wife and mother; therefore careful preparation for such a career is necessary. In view of this, the curriculum includes courses in cooking and sewing. The program in foods is sufficiently flexible to embrace all aspects of homemaking included in buying, preparing and serving well-balanced meals. The study of clothing is comprehensive and requires a mastery of all the skills included in sewing. Order and economy of time and supplies is stressed in all the practical arts courses.

Juniors display initiative and ability

The junior class, numbering forty-two, is a fun-loving mixture of basketball players, Glee Club members and Sodalists boasting of stellar standards, sensational school spirit and sincere sociability. A flair for originality is their most predominate characteristic and it is always expressed in some form or another, whether it be the Junior-Senior Banquet or a simple bulletin board display.

Highlighting the third year is the selection of the class ring which definitely marks them as future seniors.

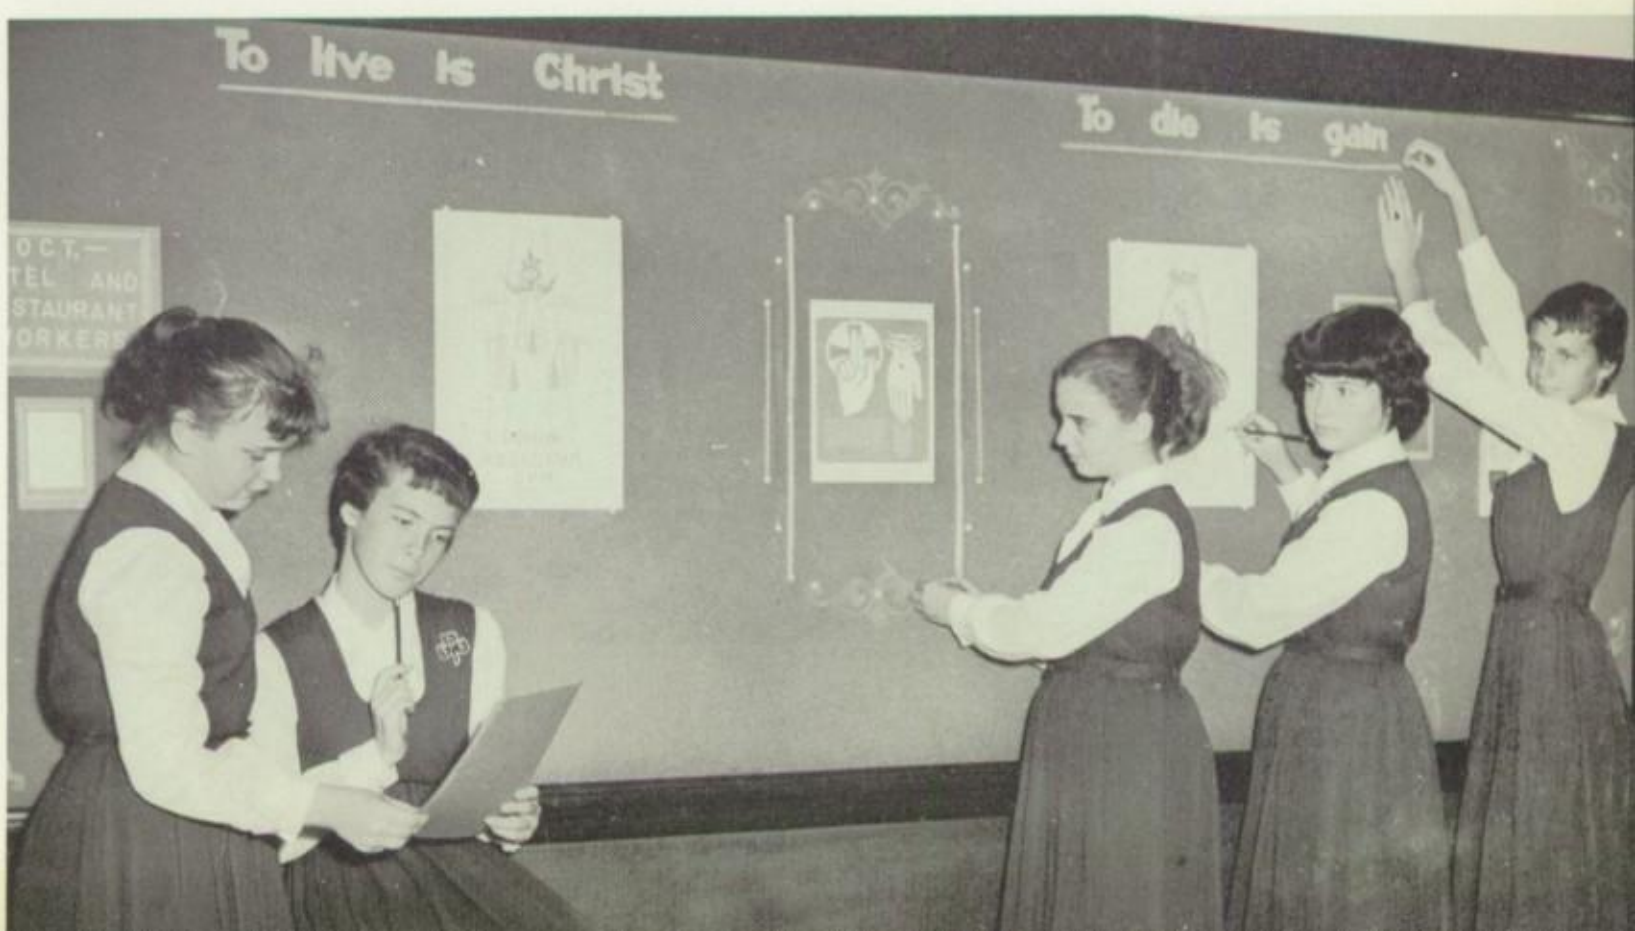
Sophomore A

School spirit and room 10A are synonymous. Work is fun because they have the right outlook. Pursuing the same course of studies, they have blended smoothly into a unified whole. The class is really one person made up of thirty members. When one needs help, twenty-nine sympathize; when one is honored, twenty-nine rejoice.

Their affable manner has won for them many friends, and their initiative keeps them in the foreground of school doings. The sophomores have more than merited a place as important members of St. Patrick High School.



The hearty crew of the U.S.S. Sophomore . . . set out, armed with common-pins and designs to subdue the foe, a blank bulletin board. Result—success. The crew is Teresa Tuite, Patricia Kinsella, Priscilla Gardiner, Vivian Crowley, Andrea Newelt.

"High School at last!" is the joyful cry of all freshmen, as after years of waiting they find themselves within the magic circle of high school. Amen.

The class ring is a visible sign of unity—a bond of mind, of heart and of affection. It will be the golden link that will bind us to our Alma Mater and to each other during the years that follow graduation.

ACTIVITIES

YOUTH . . . Alive in spirit

The Patrician is a pictorial history of St. Patrick High life. If candid camera shots do not lie, then we may claim credit for presenting a true reflection of the days which for the class of 1959 will all too soon become a memory. The staff has tried to give to the student body, in this volume, a cross-section of the many-sidedness of St. Pat's which they knew and loved.

We of the Patrician staff know that our dreams of a 1959 yearbook could never have turned into reality without the cooperation of the faculty and student body. We would like to say thank you to them and also to O'Toole and Sons, Inc., and Loring Studio for their invaluable assistance in turning the dummy sheets of yesterday into the Patrician of today.

Student Council shares school

The Student Council, elected by the students, is composed of a President and a Vice-president; a class leader and two representatives from each homeroom.

Always interested in what can make St. Patrick's a better school, councillors meet every week at 2:15, spending long sessions in earnest discussions and serious thought, cudgeling their brains for the best solution to school problems.

With the approbation of the faculty, the council acts in a gentle, judicial capacity, stressing loyalty and participation in all student activities.
